Teddy hunt

This is like hide and seek – but for your teddies and toys.

- 1 Choose 5 or 6 of your favourite toys – all different sizes
- 2 Let one person hide them in sneaky places all over the house
- 3 When they're all hidden, get everyone else to look for them
- 4 Whoever finds the most wins!

Tip: The hider can give clues if things get too tricky.

Balloon bowling

Your hallway is now a bowling alley – all you need are some paper cups for pins and a balloon to knock them down. Stack the cups in a pyramid and kick the balloon at them as hard as you can. Whoever can knock theirs down with the least goes is the winner.

The alphabet game

This is a really simple idea, but is a great way to get little ones thinking about letters – and will keep them busy for ages.

Here's the challenge... find something in the house that starts with EVERY letter of the alphabet. Good luck with Z.

What's in the box?

This works best if your kids have no idea what's in the box, so secretly gather together lots of different things and keep them out of sight. Then cut a hole in a box and place in one random object. Try to pick a mix of regular and unusual objects, toys and food – anything you have to hand – and see if your kids can guess, without looking, what's in the box?

Blind obstacle course

This is a team game, but you can easily adapt the rules if there's just a couple of you.

1

Split everyone into two teams.

2

Arrange obstacles all over the floor – chairs, tables, cushions, etc.

3

Agree on a course around the obstacles.

4

One player puts on a blindfold.

5

Their team instructs them around the course.

6

5-second penalty if you touch any object.

7

The fastest team wins.
